

300 Attend Business Men's Republican Organization Rally At Tinley Park

Over 300 taxpayers of Bremen, Orland and adjoining townships attended the big mass meeting held at the Saenger hall, Tinley Park Tuesday night to hear the candidates of the Business Men's Republican Organization giving plans and methods to restore good government in Cook County.

Axel Lonnquist, candidate for the office of president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners was the chief speaker of the evening. He made a very convincing address, some of the high lights of the same being as follows:

Amending the present obsolete taxing system of the state so that there will be an equitable distribution of taxation so that the fellow with big income and owner of bonds and other securities will pay his just share of the taxes and that the home owner and laboring man will not be penalized as is now the case while the man of means escapes paying his just share of the taxes.

Adoption of the budget system by the board of commissioners so that not more money can be expended than provided for in the budget. Mr. Lonnquist pointed out that the Forest Preserve system of the County of Cook is an expensive proposition for the taxpayers of the county and demanded that the matter of buying forest lands should be handled directly between the forest preserve board and the seller and not thru a middle man, thus doing away with the graft in connection with the purchase of such property as has been the case in the past.

The cost to the national government for maintaining the national park system from 2,000 to 4,000 miles away from the seat of administration was shown to be $390 per square mile, while the cost to the taxpayers of Cook county for the local forest preserve systems is given as $19,681 per square mile.

Pay rolls are clogged with useless holders of useless jobs, a man being hired to watch every squirrel in the forest preserves.

Hard road construction costs in Cook county also were hit. Mr. Lonnquist pointed out that Cook county has been paying $4,511 per mile more for concrete paving than the state paid for paving during the term of Len Small as governor.

Further it was shown that the increase in taxation in Cook county from 1915 to 1927 showed the enormous total of 488 per cent for the Sanitary District and 4,100 per cent for the Forest Preserve.

Moving pictures were shown depicting some of the bad conditions of Cook county as now existing.

Daniel J. Brumley, Chief Engineer of the Illinois Central and a candidate for county commissioner gave a graphic outline of the duties of the commissioners.

Mrs. Gertrude C. Lieber, who for the past 18 years has been connected with educational work in Winnetka gave a stirring address showing that the women of the county of Cook should be represented on the county board.

Dr. Thomas E. Roberts of Oak Park and Charles B. Miller of Maywood also candidates for county commissioners also spoke interestingly regarding the county situation and the need of restoring confidence in Chicago and Cook County.

Mr. Dudley, former newspaper man spoke in behalf of the entire Business Men's Republican Organization ticket.

Mayor Wm. Funk of Tinley Park was the chairman of the meeting.

Former Mokena Resident Dies

Mrs. Jennie Alvord, 59 years old, a former Mokena resident, died at her home in New Lenox late Tuesday night following a short illness.

Mrs. Alvord resided in Blue Island before coming to Mokena and two years she located in New Lenox. She is survived by her husband, Walter Alvord. The funeral will be held at the home at one o'clock this Friday afternoon. The body will be taken to Valparaiso, Indiana, her former home, for burial.

Tinley Boasts New Business Place

A locksmith establishment has been opened in the Scheer building by Messrs. Jochum and Schultdt, wherein these partners expect to specialize in the making of keys, with side lines of soldering, repairing and sharpening lawn mowers, etc.

Mr. Schultdt, whose family have long been residents of this vicinity has had experience in a similar concern in Chicago.

Mr. Jochum, a relative of Rev. Mr. Jochum of Tinley Park, has resided with the latter for the past year.

MOKENA GARDEN CLUB NOTES

Publicity Chairman
MRS. OTTO BARTELS,
PROTECT YOUR TULIPS

The Tulips say good morning. The tulips are gorgeous colored cup. The tulips gave us warning. To keep our tulips covered until Winter's time is up. Garden-The lovers living room. The garden has no specified creed. It is a reviewing place for every denomination.

The Mokena Garden Club held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. August Pfeiffer. A large attendance was present. Mrs. Wm. Sayers and Mrs. Dave Lockwood of New Lenox were visitors at the meeting. Three new members joined the club. The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. Albert Braun reading a poem "The Seed Catalogue". It was then discussed and arrangements made for the 8 exhibits to be shown at the Flower and Garden Show at Hotel Sherman in Chicago which is held there March 28 to April 5th.

Members have been busy getting things in order for the exhibits and also selling tickets for the Flower Show. Mrs. Tooley explained to the members the different exhibits the committee had chosen to show. At three o'clock the members listened to a radio talk given by Mrs. Jacobs on "Flowers", after which Mrs. Pfeiffer gave notes on how to force shrubbery. Mrs. Mall read "The Pioneer Saint" or "Johnny Applesed". Then the matter was taken up whether the Mokena Garden Club wished to join the "Association of Flowers and Garden Club of Illinois". A vote was taken by ballot and the vote carried unanimously in favor of joining the association. It was then decided that the members visit Pilcher Park Conservatory in a body, Friday afternoon, March 6th. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Wm. Lowe who wrote the poem "A Song of the Mokena Garden Club" which was published in this paper recently.

Our next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Rosa Bechtel, Tuesday, April 1st at 2 p. m.

Ground Wheat Makes An Ideal Breakfast Food

Ground wheat when used as a breakfast food is said to be the healthiest breakfast food to be had as it contains all health producing elements named below:

Iron, for rich blood and rosy cheeks.

Fluorine, for clear vision and bright eyes, but especially for the armorplate enamel that protects the teeth from decay.

Calcium, for sound teeth, good digestion, and strong bones.

Silicon, for the nerves and luxuriant hair.

Phosphorus, that repairs and builds nerve tissue.

Potassium, that keeps the tissues "young" and elastic.

Sodium, that destroys poisons and is absolutely essential to health.

Magnesium, that combines with phosphorus, silicon, and fluorine to develop teeth and bones.

Sulphur, that works with silicon to make fine hair and nails that won't "break".

Iodine, that defends the body against disease.

Manganese, that works with iron to keep the healthy red in the blood and to burn up poisons dangerous to the body.

Chlorine, that helps to make up the gastric juice, and without which there can be no "good digestion."

Oxygen, nitrogen, hydrogen, and carbon, which make breathing.

These sixteen elements that make for the joy of living are all found in wheat.

A. H. KRUSEMARK ATTACKS RECORD OF SENATOR BARR

The senatorial fight in the 41st senatorial district between Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill and Senator R. J. Barr was carried into the rural sections of Will county the past week when meetings for Mrs. O'Neill were held in Frankfort and Mokena.

At the Mokena meeting held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Whitlark, Albert Krusemark the campaign manager of Mrs. O'Neill, and the later were the speakers.

The record of Senator Barr who is seeking re-nomination was attacked by both speakers. Mr. Krusemark laid particular stress on the opinion of the Legislative Voters' League as to Senator Richard J. Barr's record in which he is charged with serving selfish interests.

Particular attention was called by Mr. Krusemark to the fact that the name of the senator's law firm appeared on the Sanitary District pay roll which District was involved in a big scandal last year when it was shown that nine million dollars of the tax payers money had been squandered and grafted. Mr. Krusemark further charged that Senator Barr has been serving this district for 27 years as senator on a salary of $1750 per year, and that during that time he has become a millionaire; that he is the champion of public utility interests; that his firm's name appears on the pay rolls of these interests and that he has not had the interests of the common people at heart; that he owns practically all the farm land between Joliet and New Lenox; that concrete roads have been built thru the senator's lands while other sections of the county are still waiting for these improvements.

Mr. Krusemark further declared that Mr. Barr did not show any interest in Wolf road being paved thru Mokena until Mrs. O'Neill entered the senatorial race.

Mr. Krusemark depicted the senator as the political czar of Will County, and that no one else, no matter how well fitted for this office, had a chance for election to the office under present conditions and urged the voters to break the bonds of political slavery.

In extolling the qualifications of Mrs. O'Neill for the office of senator, he emphasized the statement said to have been made by Gov. L. L. Emmerson that if Mrs. O'Neill is elected she can get anything in Springfield that Senator Barr is able to get.

He also laid stress on Mrs. O'Neill's accomplishments as a legislator pointing out that she was instrumental in having two bills enacted into laws which mean a great deal to the people of this state, namely the dower act and the remedying of certain portions of the divorce law which prevents unscrupulous lawyers from bleeding their clients in divorce proceedings.

Mr. Krusemark called attention that only recently the Mokena people were benefited by the action of Mrs. O'Neill in taking up the fight for a reduction in fares on the Rock Island on 60 ride and 25 ride tickets from Mokena to Chicago. He showed that the excess fares had been charged for 28 years until Mrs. O'Neill's action caused the Illinois Commerce Commission to order a reduction in these rates. He said that during the 28 years of excessive rates, the people of Mokena had paid out thousands of dollars, but that Senator Barr did not interest himself in the matter, because of his alliance with the public utility interests.

Mrs. O'Neill spoke briefly and in the course of her talk she also declared that Gov. Emmerson had told her that she could get anything for her constituents in Springfield that Senator Barr can get for them. She further pointed out that Senator Barr and the public utility interests are spending vast sums in this campaign to defeat her. She also spoke of the press of the district being subsidized, one editor telling her he would only give space to the candidate having the most money.

The women of Mokena were urged to hold as many meetings as possible to discuss the issues of the campaign. As the newspapers of the district are not readily giving space to Mrs. O'Neill's campaign it has been decided to hold more meetings in order to get the message across to the voters.

A Lottie Holman O'Neill meeting was held at the Frankfort M. E. church on Wednesday night.

A Lottie Holman O'Neill meeting is scheduled to be held at the St. John Evangelical church parlors in Mokena on March 20th.

Sen. R. J. Barr Urges Early Paving of Wolf Road

Senator R. J. Barr was in Springfield Monday relative to the approval of plans for the Wolf road paving thru Mokena.

Senator Barr was assured by the state highway authorities that the plans for two bridges on the Wolf road necessary for the paved line thru Mokena, connecting with the Lincoln highway and Cook county, would be approved within the next few days. These plans were forwarded to Springfield some time ago by Glen Fletcher, county engineer. Mokena residents are anxious that the bridge contracts be let at an early date in order that paving of the highway can be finished this summer.

Carl Hirsch and Elmer Cooper of Mokena attended the meeting with Senator Barr regarding the Mokena plans.

Lemuel Churchill Answers Summons

Lemuel Churchill, 74 years old, well known former resident of the village of Frankfort, died at his home, Fox street, Joliet, the forepart of the week following a brief illness.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Alida Churchill, three daughters, Mrs. Sarah Gill, Joliet; Mrs. Grace Stahl, Missouri; Mrs. Susie Orphan, Argo, Ill.; four sons, Albert, Ernest and Irvin and a sister, Mrs. Jane Fern, all of Joliet.

Burial was in the Pleasant Hill cemetery at Frankfort.

Next Orland Church Night Program Mar. 12

The next monthly Church and Community night of the Orland Park M. E. church will be Wednesday night March 12th. There will be the usual pot luck supper served in the church basement at 6:30 p. m. The program in the auditorium will start at 7:30 p. m.

Through special arrangement with the 1933 World's Fair Committee Rev. Sanders has arranged for their representative Mr. Sheppard to present the plans for the coming World's Fair. This will be a rare opportunity for the people of the southwest suburbs to get first hand information on the coming Fair. Mr. Sheppard who is a very fine speaker will present complete plans as far as they are underway. Many people have been wondering as to the exact location of the Fair, what type of celebration it will be; the effect of the Fair on Chicago and many other questions all of which will be answered by Mr. Sheppard. He will also answer any questions that any one may care to ask.

There will also be a moving picture "The Light of Faith" featuring Lon Chaney in an absorbing drama in which the legend of the Holy Grail and King Arthurs Round Table will be beautifully portrayed. There will also be a one reel comedy.

The Sunday Evening Club will also present a one act play presenting a very interesting comedy sketch.

Every one is invited to attend. The people of the surrounding communities are especially invited to hear Mr. Sheppard.

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

PLAY GREAT SUCCESS

The play "I'll Explain Everything" presented by the Orland Park M. E. Church Sunday Club on Friday evening was a decided success. Every character was well portrayed. Every seat and all the standing room was taken and every one seemed to enjoy the evening very much.

Former Tinley Pastor Dies In Mo. Tuesday

Rev. A. Biedermann, who was pastor of the Zion Lutheran church in Tinley Park about 25 years ago, died of pneumonia at Lohman, Mo., Tuesday evening. Rev. Mr. Biedermann is survived by his widow, one son and two daughters. The funeral will be held Friday at Compton, Ill.

To Name Mokena Scout Committee

Interest in the organization of a Boy Scout Troop in Mokena is beginning to grow. A committee of 3 is to be selected on Friday night of this week at the Mokena school at a meeting called for 7:30 o'clock. The committee is to be chosen from the following list of candidates: Ona E. McGovney, Harry F. Mall, N. F. Heiman, John Balaz, Paul Roessner, Elmer Sippel, Elmer Cooper, Albert Cappel. The committee to be chosen may consist of more than three members if so desired.

The following tentative list of candidates for scout master and assistant scout masters has been suggested: Louis Nelson, Everett Cooper, Alfred Heiman and Clyde Knudson.

WILL ELECT OFFICERS

The Orland Park Parent-Teachers Association will hold their annual election of officers at the Orland Park school next Thursday evening, March 13th at 8 o'clock.

Pay Taxes Early In Will Co. And Avoid Penalties

The period for the payment of taxes in Will County before advertising costs are affixed is shorter this year than ever before, due to the fact that the Illinois State Tax Commission was late in furnishing the assessed valuation of the rail roads and corporations and the rate.

Advertising costs will be added April 16th, 1 per cent interest May 1st, 2 per cent June 1st and the delinquent tax sale about June 25th.

The County Treasurer has advanced the final payment of personal taxes to the same date as that of real estate or April 15th. Personal taxes according to the statutes, are due and payable not later than March 10, but owing to the delay in the collecting period, the County Treasurer has advanced the date of payment to April 15.

After April 15 all unpaid personal tax accounts are turned over to an attorney for collection who proceeds to institute judgment against the tax payer failing to settle his account when due. Judgment is requested against said non-payee in a justice of a peace court, where the tax payer must pay service and court costs in addition to the tax.

A new arrangement in the treasurer's office in the court house in Joliet affording four receiving windows and an additional door, one entrance, the other an exit, will facilitate collections, but those desiring to avoid the congestion and time of waiting in line, can pay both their real estate and personal taxes by mail. In case one desires to pay their real estate taxes in this manner they should always enclose the legal description of all property on which they desire to pay and no other. Many taxpayers now avail themselves of this method and incidentally avoid the inconvenience of waiting in line.

All checks and remittances payable to Walter G. Krohn, County Collector.

The county treasurer's office will be open until 1 p. m. on Saturdays. This is in keeping with a recent statute passed by the last session of the legislature, that all county offices be closed Saturday afternoon.

Ill. Agricultural Asso. Praises Senator Barr

Senator R. J. Barr is in receipt of the following self explanatory letter from Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agriculture Association:

"We are greatly pleased to inform you that careful checking of the official records of the recent General Assembly shows you to have given 100 per cent support to controversial measures initiated and supported by the Illinois Agricultural Association.

"We are expecting the next issue of our official publication to carry a rather complete report of the activities of the 56th General Assembly on matters of major interest to agriculture. We are desirous of including in this report a picture of all those with 100 per cent voting records and would appreciate receiving either a picture or cut of yourself to be used for this purpose.

"I also want to take this occasion to express the appreciation of the farm people of Illinois for the effective service you have rendered Illinois agriculture in your official capacity."

Tinley Legion Notes

The 4th District meeting at Beverly Hills Post No. 407 on Feb. 27 was one of the most interesting and instructive of the year. The feature of the evening was an address by Col. E. R. Hadley, author of "Sinister Shadows". The speaker has for years made an intensive study of all phases of the communist, radical and "Red" and similar movements. He has travelled extensively in all of the European countries, has interviewed all of the leading statesmen of the Continent and knows Red Russia from "soup to nuts". All that has convinced him that actual attempts are being made in the United States to undermine and eventually overthrow our system of government.

The big Dance sponsored by the Tinley Park Legion Post No. 615 last Saturday night at the Saenger hall, was a success both socially as well as financially. Altho the weather was unfavorable, the usual large crowd was present and enjoyed the hop immensely.

Interest in bowling is increasing so rapidly that it is likely that the Tinley Park Post will enter a team in the Legion Tournament to be held at Homewood this month.

E. L. Nylander is in charge of the team and wants to hear from any Legionnaire bowlers. Some of the "bowling widows" would like very much to see bowling alleys here in town. Here is hoping.

The Tinley Park Triangle Club light weight basketball team has received an invitation to compete in a tournament sponsored by the Homewood Post of the Legion.

E. L. Nylander has been appointed Athletic Officer of the Post. Mike Fasana was initiated as a member Monday evening. This now makes 41 members. We hope to have 50 members before convention time in the fall.

Watch for the article entitled "Are You With The Legion?" to appear in this column next week.

New Battery Charging Station At Orland Park

Clarence E. Beagley has added another new feature to his new radio store and workshop headquarters in the Creer building in Orland Park by way of a standard automobile battery charging service and is now prepared to charge all makes of batteries.

March 11 Last Day for Filing Village Petitions

The last session of the Legislature made some important changes in the election laws regarding the filing of petitions for nomination to village offices. Under the new ruling the following dates must be carefully observed:

March 11—Last day for filing certificates of nomination or nomination papers.

March 16—Last day for filing withdrawal from nomination.

March 26—Last day for posting and publishing notice of city or village election.

April—Last day for posting the usual cards of instruction and specimen ballots.

April 14—Delivery of official ballots to judges of election.

April 15—City and village election.

Drink Water to Help Wash Out Kidney Poison

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Count Luckner THE SEA DEVIL

By LOWELL THOMAS

Copyright by Doubleday, Doran & Co.

Luckner and his companions take passage on a vessel at Wakaya with the idea of capturing it when it put to sea. They are arrested by the British before the vessel sails and jailed at Suva, Fiji Islands. A Japanese admiral tries to get information from Luckner. The members of the crew left on the coral atoll capture a French vessel and make their escape.

"I am glad to see you, sir. Why are we treated like this? And are prisoners of war to be tried by civilians?"

"Count," he replied, "public opinion forces it. The public has demanded that within three days of your arrival in this country you must reveal where you sank the Wairuna and why you sank her without saving a single life, and also where your ship Seadler is."

"But I know nothing about the Wairuna," I replied. "I did not sink her. In every single capture that we made, I took the crews aboard my ship, kept them there until we were overcrowded, and then sent them home."

"You say you didn't sink the Wairuna?"

"No! Nor ever even heard of her!"

"Will you give me your word of honor on this?"

"I give it to you now."

"Very well, count, that is good."

"But why do you keep my men in chains?"

"We want to know where the Seadler is."

"I want to tell you, sir, that my men will die before they will say anything. They have orders from me not to talk. If anyone is to tell anything about the Seadler, it is I. You would give your men the same command under the same circumstances, and you would want them to obey as my men are obeying."

"You are the one to ask, count, about information of the Seadler?"

"Yes."

"Then tell me where she is."

"Captain, may I sink deep in the earth if I ever betray my crew. I respect you. I would not put such a question to you if you were my prisoner."

"Count," he replied, "your men have set an example to our sailors. I understand and appreciate your attitude. So long as your men show themselves to be disciplined sailors, they will have excellent treatment. And I hope that you, yourself, will have a pleasant stay with us and find nothing of which to complain. Gentlemen," he addressed the judges, "the court martial is over."

My four men were taken back to their island, and Kirchheiss and I to ours.

At Motuili things were not so bad. The food was good and discipline was not too strict. The camp commander, Turner by name, seemed very proud to have a couple of real war prisoners in his charge. He had really excellent cause to be pleased. Now that he had enemy naval officers in his camp, he was raised to the rank of lieutenant colonel, and his force of guards was increased to eighty men. It likewise seemed to add to his dignity that he had among his captives some one whom he could call count. The principal annoyance now was the strict watch they felt obliged to keep over us to prevent our escape. Headquarters at Auckland had to be telephoned every other hour and told that everything was all right. Colonel Turner was also provided with a fine new motor boat, so that, if anything went wrong with the telephone wire, he would still have a means of swift communication with the mainland.

"By Joe, what a fine motor boat," I exclaimed when I saw it.

"Maybe we could use it," commented Kirchheiss.

You couldn't blame the authorities for being a bit nervous. They still did not know where the remainder of the Seadler's crew was, and were worried about a possible raid to liberate us. Likewise, Kirchheiss and I had the idea of escape buzzing furiously in our heads. In fact, the prisoners on Motuili before we arrived had already thought of a jail break. They had formed no definite plan, but had gathered materials that might be useful.

One had contrived to filch and hide away a number of tools. Another had found a derelict floating mine and taken the fuses from it and also a large quantity of gun cotton, which he stowed in his mattress. He slept on the gun cotton every night. Another had succeeded in "finding" charts of the harbor with the location of the mine fields. In any plan of flight, I could, by including the men who had collected them, have these materials at my disposal.

The motor boat was, of course, the center of all scheming. The idea was to sail away in it with an able-bodied company of prison camp comrades, capture a sailing ship, and go buccaneering again. One of the prisoners, a young fellow, was a motor expert. The camp commander had assigned him to look after the engine of his motor boat. So he was one man whom we would have to have with us.

Although there were sentries all over the island, we were sure we could invent some way of outwitting them. We would have to stow the boat with a large amount of supplies. This, our motor expert could do while pretending to tinker with the engine. He could hide the material away in the air chambers of the boat. Much more difficult was the job of collecting all the food, weapons, and other equipment. This took a long time, and all the patient maneuvering that is traditional of prisoners and their schemes of escape.

First it was necessary to quiet the uneasiness of the camp commander. He apparently expected me to go breaking out of his camp breathing fire from my nostrils. The camp doctor was a German Pole, quite intelligent, but of degenerated spirit, who was used by the commandant to spy on the prisoners. He made the friendliest sort of overtures to me, and I, having been told that he was an informer, made it seem as though I were being completely taken in by his smooth ways.

Nearly everybody in the camp suffered severely from rheumatism. I was one of the few who had the good luck to escape the malady. But I pretended to get it badly, so badly that I was only able to walk with crutches. The commander was pleased when he found that I was almost helpless. For how could a cripple attempt an escape? The doctor pretended to try his best to cure my supposed ailment, but gave me a kind of treatment that was designed to make it worse. His hoodwinking was complete when I asked him to help me to get word to my people in Germany to send my five thousand pounds, and promised him part of this in return for his aid. I kept the hypothetical five thousand pounds dangling before his nose, and his avarice blinded him so much that I was able to make a ready tool of him.

My crew for the projected flight consisted of nine men, seven of whom were North German Lloyd merchant-ship cadets captured by the British in Samoa. When war broke out they happened to be at the American South Sea port of Pago Pago. Slipping away in a small boat they got to German Samoa, only to find it in the hands of the New Zealanders.

I did my recruiting secretly. The plan of escape was kept from the other prisoners. Always to keep your secret among as few as possible is a good rule even among prisoners. You never know who is a spy. The fellows I chose were all lively lads, ready for anything.

One day a couple of the prisoners said to me:

"Count, let's get up a show for Christmas, a play."

Show, play, theater—that was an idea for me.

"Certainly I will," I replied. "I often got up shows in the navy. We will have a theater here at Motuili that will beat the best in Berlin. But you must leave everything to me. I will direct everything."

"All right," they said.

I got permission from the commandant to produce the show. In fact, he waxed quite enthusiastic about it. Not only would it give the prisoners something to do, but it would also provide amusement for the jailers. Life on the island was mighty boring to all of them.

In a little while the prison camp was humming with preparations for the grand spectacle I was going to stage. This was the cover under which my fellows and I prepared all of our equipment for our escape. It deluded the guards, and also fooled the prisoners whom we couldn't take with us. When we wanted material, always apparently innocent things, we asked for it and said it was for the show. When we built anything, it was for the show.

We even built a wireless set out of things supposed to be for our grosses schauspielhaus. We made bombs out of tin cans and gun cotton that had already been procured. The bombs had fuses that could be lighted from a cigarette. One of my men worked on a farm in the interior of the island, and got a lot of dynamite and blasting powder used in blowing up stumps. We stole a couple of pistols from the camp arsenal. We made a fake contrivance which looked like a perfect Lewis or Maxim machine gun, but it worked well enough and it looked even more formidable. Cadet von Zartowsky took odds and ends and made a sextant that afterward took us fifty nautilical miles off our course, pretty fair, considering the circumstances.

We had no great trouble in hiding away a considerable supply of food in the air chambers of the motor boat. Of course, I not only had talked of elaborate plans for the supposed theatrical events that I was directing, but I also had the prisoners prepare a lot of box-sets, stage props, more even than could be used. These were made up by the rest of the fellows who were not in our plot. Most of the actual material needed for our escape and subsequent raiding cruise had to be fixed up stealthily by the boys who were to make the dash for freedom with me.

One midnight a guard happened to notice three of my men busily at work. One was painting a large German flag. Another was making a red pistol holster. The third was sewing a suit out of bed sheets. We intended hoisting a sail on the motor boat in order to conserve fuel if we had to cruise about in that little boat for a long time. The guard reported what he had seen to the commandant.

"Oh, it's all right," said Colonel Turner, "it's stuff for the theater."

But next day he came and questioned me:

"Look here, count, I can understand how you might need a flag and a pistol holster for your show, but what about the sail?"

"Oh, that's the curtain!" I replied.

Of all the people I met in New Zealand, there was but one for whom I had a complete contempt. He was a fellow named Hansen, a German by birth and a naturalized New Zealander. In spite of his naturalization, he had been interned. He happened to notice that the motor expert, while supposedly working on the engine of the Pearl, the colonel's boat, had carried something suspicious aboard.

Anxious to curry favor with the commandant, he reported that we were acting suspiciously. The commandant was contemptuous of a rat like that in the first place, and then he was utterly infatuated with our theater. He said that whatever we were doing could only be in preparation for our show. Nevertheless, he tried to investigate, but found nothing to confirm what the squealer had told him.

After weeks of hard labor, we were ready. At night we cut the wires connecting the island with the mainland and set a barracks afire. That created the diversion we needed. Everybody, guards and all, flocked to put the blaze out. I was among the foremost, and attracted all attention to myself. I seemed to have a passion for fighting fires. My boys were with me. When the excitement was at its highest we stole away singly and boarded the motor boat. The engine purred, and we were away in the darkness.

We were safe from pursuit for a while, anyway. There was no other boat at the island, and Motuili could not communicate with the mainland. It was only when the wires were repaired or when the mainland was due to get its next report that the chase after us could begin. When our escape did become known on the mainland on that night of December 13, 1917, every kind of craft available went out to look for us. Private owners took up scouting for us as a sport. Boats chased one another and shot at one another, and one steamer went on the rocks. Finally, a false rumor spread that we had capsized and drowned, and the weary pursuers were glad to accept it as true and return home.

We had our difficulties in finding our way in the night through the Hauraki gulf on which Auckland lies, but at an hour or so past midnight we saw sweeping shafts of light. The authorities at Auckland were looking for us with a searchlight, a ridiculous procedure, but one calculated to impress the population. We steered by the searchlight beams now, and picked our way along easily enough.

Of course, it would take a separate volume to record all of the details of our work of preparation and our final escape. I am only giving you a description of the high spots. But, by the way, I almost forgot to tell you how we were dressed. We all had New Zealand uniforms. Mine was the most interesting of the lot and provided material for Australian humorists and cartoonists for many weeks. As the commander of a man-o-war, even of a twelve-foot wooden one, with the unwelcome name of Pearl, I absolutely had to have a sword. One of my boys, just an hour before our escape, slipped into the wardrobe of the prison camp commandant. Not only did he take Colonel Turner's best dress uniform, but he also swiped his sword and scabbard.

Business Men's Rep. Organization Issues Challenge

Declaring that the Business Men's Republican Organization candidates for members of the county board are not the selection of one civic organization as recently charged by some of this ticket's opponents, Robert McCormick Adams, executive chairman, has issued a direct challenge to the Deneen and Snow-Harding factions to present better slates for county commissioners. The Business Men's group say that Deneen has picked up a number of unworthy members of the present board of County commissioners and that the Snow-Harding group have not presented candidates of enough ability for these important offices.

County candidates on the Business Men's Republican Organization ticket include Axel Lonnquist of Wilmette, candidate for president of the board and county commissioner; Daniel J. Bromley of Flossmoor; Mrs. Gertrude C. Lieber of Winnetka; Dr. Thomas E. Roberts of Oak Park, and Charles B. Miller of Maywood.

Mr. Adams continued: "The candidates for the county board sponsored by the Business Men's Republican Organization have been picked for ability, geographically and vocationally to represent all the districts impartially of the city and county. This movement was conceived by business men and such organizations as the Clearing Industrial District, the South Central District, The Northwest Manufacturers' Club and various civic and improvement organizations who drafted their most outstanding members to stand as candidates. This we believe to be constructive politics."

"What opposition do we find to this ticket? On the one hand Senator Deneen for purely political purposes has built up a county board ticket composed of certain men who have demonstrated their unfitness for the office of county commissioner. It should especially be remembered that many of Deneen's candidates of the county board are seeking reelection even though they have been members of the board for the last four years, and the notorious fact being that this present board of county commissioners recently had to ask the county board employees to work for seventyfive cents on the dollar for the coming year."

"On the other hand, the Snow-Harding faction has filed a complete slate for county board, but they have been very reticent in disclosing the background of these new candidates. Apparently their chief asset is the fact that they are unknown both politically and otherwise. Is this an effort on the part of the regular outfit to gain political control of the county board for the next four years when the people of this city and county are determined now for the first time in years to rid themselves of professional political bosses and restore business administration to the board?"

"This group does not wish to become involved in any other political issue in this county than the cleanup and reorganization of the county board, and we call upon Mr. Deneen and the regular Snow-Harding faction to promptly and immediately disavow the sponsorship of those candidates whom they know to be unfit. It is not too late for Senator Deneen nor for the Snow-Harding group to clean up this situation and do a face about in the interest of good citizenship."

A RATTLESNAKE'S JAW

The rattlesnake's poison equipment, however, is a highly interesting example of nature's ingenuity, and a knowledge of the construction is valuable to persons who in the course of their travels might encounter these venomous reptiles. For this reason, the Field Museum of Natural History has placed on view a life-size model of a rattlesnake's head with its mouth wide open, showing all the defensive weapons of this poisonous creature. Lighthouse Illumination

Most of the American lighthouses guarding ships against coastal rocks have now run the complete gamut of lighting in the last 200 years. They began with fish oil and then proceeded through sperm oil, rapeseed or colza oil, lard oil, vaporized kerosene with incandescent mantles and finally electricity upon which main dependence is put nowadays.

His Instructions

The broker was very sick, and at times delirious. In one of his lucid moments he asked the nurse what the last readings had shown his temperature to be. "One hundred and one," she said. "Good," said the patient. "When it gets to 101½, sell."

To Give Views on Tax Relief

Representatives of Cook County towns and townships will have an opportunity in the next few weeks to tell Gov. L. L. Emmerson's Illinois Revenue Investigation Commission their views on permanent tax relief legislation and the form of constitutional amendment necessary to give permanent tax relief.

State Senator Arthur A. Huebsch of Brookfield, chairman of the commission, has announced that public hearings will be held in each section of the county, starting the week of March 9.

The public hearings were launched last week (week of March 2). Starting the next week, five hearings will be held, Senator Huebsch announced, for the county towns and townships. One will be held for the north section; one for the northwest; one for the west; one for the southwest, and one for the south.

After these hearings, the commission will call in the boards of assessors and review, and representatives of civic agencies, to get their views. The commission plans to prepare its report in time so that, if a constitutional amendment is considered necessary, it can be submitted to referendum vote at the November election.

Members of the commission are Senator Huebsch, chairman; former Senator Herbert S. Hicks, Rockford, secretary; Senator Richard J. Barr, Joliet; Rep. Leroy M. Green, Rockford; Rep. Alexander Wilson, Cairo; Harrison B. Riley, Chicago Title and Trust Co.; and Levi H. Fuller, Oak Park, executive secretary.

This is the telephone's mission

IN THIS COUNTRY, a new type of civilization is being reared—a civilization of better opportunity for the average man, comfort and convenience, business enterprise and higher standards that enrich the daily life of all the people.

To build for this new age, the Bell System in 1929 expended more than 550 million dollars. These millions were used to add new plant and further improve service.

This American development of instantaneous communication, of fast, far-reaching speech, belongs not to the few, but to the many. It is the aim of the Bell System to permit each personality to express itself without regard to distance. This is part of the telephone ideal that anyone, anywhere, shall be able to talk quickly and at reasonable cost with anyone, anywhere else. There is no standing still in the Bell System.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson enumerated the four major objectives of his administration in an address at the annual short course in highway engineering at the University of Illinois. The four projects announced by Governor Emmerson were: Revision of the state's out-of-date revenue code by constitutional amendment and necessary legislation. The completion, in so far as possible, of the state bond issue system, the starting of a great secondary and farm-to-market road system, and the widening of roads and separation of grades much needed in the metropolitan areas. Completion of the Illinois waterway through federal aid. The providing of adequate housing facilities for charitable and penal wards, a continuation of the efforts to find a preventive for mental and nervous disorders, and certain types of delinquency.

"Egypt's Associated Dailies" an organization of thirteen daily newspapers published in southern Illinois includes in a series of promotional ads a "Believe It or Not" copy which lists a number of interesting and perhaps not generally appreciated facts about that section. Among them is the statement that southern Illinois produces more oil than Pennsylvania, contains more tillable land than all of New England, that "The largest strip of coal mine area in the world is in Egypt, that southern Illinois has not mined more than 10 per cent of its coal deposits," and that Egypt shipped 4,500 carloads of peaches in 1929.

Mrs. Louis L. Emmerson dedicated the tulip tree planted on the southwest lawn of the Centennial grounds by the nature study and conservation department of the Springfield Woman's club.

A bill authorizing the manufacture of one gram of radium by the bureau of mines to be delivered to the director of the United States Veterans' bureau for use in their hospitals and calling for an appropriation of a maximum of $100,000 for carrying out the provisions of the act, has been referred to the house committee on mines and mining of which Congressman Frank M. Ramey is a member.

Coal mining in Illinois will be more active during the coming summer than in a number of years is the opinion of many members of the Illinois Coal Operators' association. Operators in southern Illinois are said to be awaiting the outcome of a conference of the Illinois operators in Tampa, Fla., before deciding on their summer operations.

Work will be begun on four buildings for the Chicago World's fair this year, it has been revealed by the centennial commission. Virtually all of the land upon which the fair grounds will be laid out was the bed of Lake Michigan when the Columbian exposition was held in 1893. Engineers pushed back the lake and filled in the space to extend Chicago's eastern boundary lakeward.

Mrs. Emile Todd Helm, ninety-four, one of the last surviving persons who was intimately associated with Abraham Lincoln, died recently at her home near Lexington, Ky. Mrs. Helm was half sister of the martyred President's wife, Mary Todd Lincoln.

Members of the Illinois aerial navigation commission recently held a meeting in Chicago to outline policies in formulating recommendations on air traffic laws to the next legislature. They also attended the legislative Air Parley of midwest states held in Milwaukee.

Speaking before the members of the Inland Daily Press association in Chicago, Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, told the newspaper men that Chicago stands seventeenth in the list of American cities in the number of homicides per thousand of population.

A recent publication of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, explaining the state organization and its various departmental and committee projects, calls attention to the fact that there are 173 local chambers of commerce, which are members of the state body. Through the efforts of its industrial development department, of which J. Paul Clayton of Springfield has been chairman for a number of years, more communities of Illinois have prepared industrial surveys than have those of any other state in the nation, it has been said. Wayne Hummer of La Salle is president of the state organization and C. G. Ferris of Chicago is executive vice president.

Manufacturing industries of the state registered a decline of 1.15 per cent in employment and 5.3 per cent in payrolls for the period December 15 to January 15, according to a report issued by Howard B. Myers, chief of the bureau of statistics and research of the Illinois department of labor. Non-manufacturing industries reduced employment 3.8 per cent and wage payments 4.9 per cent during this period. The combined loss for all reporting industries amounted to 2.3 per cent in employment and 5.1 per cent in total wage payments.

Because of a vacancy in the United States Naval academy at Annapolis, Congressman Ruth Hanna McCormick will have the appointment of a midshipman this spring. All those interested are advised that an examination will be held by the Civil Service commission beginning promptly at 9 o'clock a. m., March 8, 1930. The examination can be taken at the first or second class post office nearest to the residence of the applicant. Those desiring to compete should advise Congressman McCormick at the house office building, Washington, D. C., without delay. The age limit for Annapolis is from sixteen to twenty years on April 1, of the calendar year in which they enter the academy. Mrs. McCormick will give preference to the candidate who makes the best record at the March 8 examination but the candidate nominated by her will be required to pass a mental examination conducted by the bureau of navigation on April 16, 1930, and a physical examination in June when he enters the academy.

Director Clarence F. Buck, of the state department of agriculture, has submitted a report to Governor Emmerson showing that 110,803 animals were tested for bovine tuberculosis during the month of January, the highest number on record for any winter month in the history of the testing program. Of the 110,803 animals tested, 2,037, or slightly less than 2 per cent, reacted.

Dr. Andy Hall, director of the state department of public health, has announced that the month of April will be devoted to an intensive campaign against tuberculosis in children, the great seed-bed of the disease. Last year marked the biggest decline in mortality from tuberculosis in nearly a decade and at the rate of decrease shown for the year, the disease will practically disappear from the state in 25 years.

Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling is acting governor during the absence from the state of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, who is spending ten days in Miami Beach, Florida.

A. C. Everingham, state farm consultant, in an address before the Aurora Kiwanis club, gave some interesting information as to the way agriculture is conducted on the state farm at Vandalia. Inasmuch as the primary object is to provide work for the prisoners, hand tools rather than modern machinery are used in the farming operations. The farming program for the coming year includes in addition to the usual production of grain, hay and livestock, the cultivation of 150 acres of broom corn, cultivation of sorghum by hand, and the cultivation of 200 acres of beans by hand. Contemplated building operations and farming will keep all prisoners employed, Mr. Everingham stated.

Congressman Frank M. Ramey of Illinois on the occasion of Lincoln's birthday delivered an address before the house of representatives upon the life of the emancipator. Mr. Ramey said that inasmuch as it is his good fortune to represent in congress the same district once represented in that body by Lincoln, it devolved upon him as a duty to mark the occasion in this manner.

There were 3,314 disabling accidents in Illinois during the months of September, October and November, 1929, according to statistics secured from newspaper clippings by the division of civilian vocational rehabilitation. There were, in addition, 931 non-disabling accidents, 1,066 fatal, a total of 5,311 for the three months tabulated. The automobile led the list of causes, 2,087 being credited to it, and children were the victims of 1,574 of the total number.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has issued a proclamation designating Friday, April 11, and Friday, October 10 as arbor and bird days. "It is fitting to recall at appropriate times the service which birds render to the agricultural areas of our state as well as remember their contributions to our daily happiness," the proclamation read in part.

Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer of the state of Illinois, addressed the annual short course in highway engineering in session at Champaign, which was attended by all the major highway officials of the state, as well as county board supervisors and county highway officials. "This department," said Mr. Sheets, "as well as the other departments of the state, will expect and require that all funds paid to the counties under the provisions of the Motor Fuel Tax law be used strictly for the purpose for which they were raised. The counties will be required to keep complete and adequate records of the receipts and disbursements of all such funds so that proper audits may be made by representatives of the state."

At the annual meeting of the Lincoln National Memorial Highway association held at the St. Nicholas hotel, Springfield, last year's officers were re-elected as follows: James Weaver, Oakford, president; Elmer McCann, Decatur, secretary; Allen T. Lucas, Champaign, historian, and George Keys, Springfield, treasurer. The association is interested in securing a Lincoln memorial highway from Hodgenville, Kentucky, to central Illinois, and is awaiting a report from state officials on a proposed route for the trail.

Lesson for March 9

THE PARABLE OF THE SOWER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:1-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Hearers and Doers.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Hearers and Doers.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Giving Heed to Jesus' Teaching.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Take Heed How Ye Hear.

In this thirteenth chapter of Matthew the "mysteries" of the kingdom are unfolded. By "mystery" in the Scriptures is meant truth undiscoverable by human reason, made known by revelation. The seven parables of this chapter set forth in a most graphic manner the admixture of moral and spiritual affairs in the world between Christ's ascension and return to the earth.

I. The Sower (v. 3).
The sower is not named in this parable. In the parable of the wheat and tares, the sower is the Son of Man (v. 37). It is evident that the sower in this case is the Lord Jesus Christ. Through the centuries He has been sowing the seed of divine truth by means of prophets, apostles and ministers.

II. The Kind of Soil (vv. 4-8; 19-23).

The soil is the human heart (v. 19). The seed sown is the Word of God (v. 19). The difference of results lies in the condition of the soil, which in turn is the state of the human heart. Notwithstanding the faithfulness of the sower and the purity of the seed, the results of preaching God's Word depend upon the condition of the human heart. This parable reveals four kinds of soil or hearers.

1. The wayside, or hard-hearted hearer (v. 4, cf. v. 19).

The wayside means the track beaten down by the hoofs of animals and the feet of men. Because the soil was unbroken and uncultivated the seed could not get beneath the surface, therefore was devoured by the fowls. The great truth taught is that the heart unbroken and hard is not favorable soil for the gospel.

2. The stony places, or superficial hearers (v. 5, cf. vv. 20, 21).

This means stones with a thin layer of soil upon them. Under such conditions the seed springs up quickly, but likewise scorches quickly. Hearts superficially impressed receive God's Word with joy, but when persecution and trials come they are not able to endure.

3. The thorny ground, or pre-occupied hearers (v. 7, cf. v. 22).

In this case the ground is good, mellow enough and of sufficient depth, but has thorns in it. Such really hear the Word of God, but the cares of this world and the deceitfulness of riches and the lusts of other things, entering in choke the Word and it becomes unfruitful (Mark 4:19).

Many are the "thorny ground" hearers of this age. The good seed cannot mature because (1) of worldliness. Men and women are completely absorbed in the things of business and are burdened with care. (2) The deceitfulness of riches. Anxious care in business brings riches to many. The effect of riches is to blunt the spiritual perception of men. (3) Lusts of other things entering in. This means the pleasures of life. All these things choke the Word of God. Many of the enjoyments of the world may be innocent in themselves, but they attract so much attention and consume so much energy and time that one has no time for Bible reading, meditation and prayer.

4. The good ground, or fruitful hearers (v. 8, cf. v. 23).

"But other fell into good ground and brought forth fruit." This ground differed from all the rest. It was mellow, deep and moist, therefore it was capable of bringing forth fruit, a hundred, some sixty and some thirty fold. In the measure that the heart is kept free from worldliness, riches and pleasures, the good seed matures.

III. The Purpose of Teaching in Parables (vv. 10-17).

There is much misapprehension concerning teaching in parables. The parabolic method of teaching makes clear the truth to those that love it, but conceals it from those who have a distaste for it. Jesus did not teach by parables till the rulers had set their hearts against Him. When in the light of His miracles and wonderful works they turned against him and attributed His works to the devil, He denounced them in the most scathing terms and began to teach in parables, in fulfillment of the prophecy of Isaiah (Matt. 13:14, 15; cf. Isa. 6:9, 10).

God Ever Ready to Protect

God often strikes away our props to bring us down upon his mighty arms. What strength and peace it gives us to feel them underneath us! Far as we may sink, we cannot go farther down than those stretched arms.—Doctor Cuyler.

What Love Is
Love is the simple desire for the highest good of another or of others, and is the expression of a spirit of self-surrender.—Bishop Westcott.

Children Cry for it

Children hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And this pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and harmless as the recipe reads. (The wrapper tells you just what Castoria contains.)

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, use it to keep the system from clogging. Your doctor will tell you Castoria deserves a place in the family medicine cabinet until your child is grown. He knows it is safe for the tiniest baby; effective for a boy in his teens. With this special children's remedy handy, you need never risk giving a boy or girl medicine meant for grown-ups. Castoria is sold in every drug store; the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature.

Fliers Say Courage Varies with the Way they Feel

AEROPLANE pilots tell us that their courage, their whole attitude toward flying, varies from day to day, with the way they feel. If they feel full of pep, healthy, they can try anything—nothing frightens them. Their nerve is unshakable; their skill keen; their flying is machine-like in its perfection.

What is the matter with these brave people when they are not up to par? The natural poisons in their bodies have not been swept away. They are allowing their brains to be clouded and dulled by poisons which should not be permitted to remain in the body.

This is the lesson we can learn from airmen. It is the lesson that points to Nujol—the simple, natural, normal way—without the use of drugs or medicines to keep the body internally clean of the poisons that slow it up. Nujol is pure, tasteless, colorless clear water. It forms no habit; it cannot hurt even a baby.

See how the sunshine floods into your life when you are really well. Get a bottle of Nujol in its sealed package at any drug store. It costs only a few cents and it makes you feel like a million dollars. Find out for yourself what Nujol will do for you this very night. You can be at top-notch efficiency and happy all the time. Get a bottle today.

Those Dear Girls

Some Florida girls read in a paper that if girls wished to have small mouths they should repeat frequently and rapidly, "Fanny Finch fried five flounder fish for Francis Fowler's father."

They have formed societies and are now repeating the quotation in concert. They hope to get their mouths small enough to be kissed.—Florida Times Union.

Britain Makes Test of Lifeguard for Motors

A man-catcher attached to the front of all motor vehicles is the latest device being tested by the British ministry of transportation in an effort to reduce the growing toll of fatal street accidents in Great Britain. Deaths average fifteen a day. The new lifeguard is fitted to cover the front wheels of cars, much like a cow-catcher on a train, and is designed to carry the car's victim along the road. Each crossbar of the guard is fitted with a sponge-like material, and at the bottom a rubber fender prevents legs or arms from getting under the wheels. Tests by the ministry of transport included long hours with a dummy figure that was thrown into the path of a fast moving one-ton truck from all conceivable angles. The dummy was not once run over.

Tuberculosis Claim Probed

Because of the great demand for the medicine which he claims to have discovered and to have used in the cure of scores of cases of tuberculosis, Rev. Edward Ward, vicar of a suburban church in Auckland, New Zealand, has promised Minister of Health Stallworthy to discuss with an expert the formula for his treatment. He declares the many requests for the medicine include a large order from England. The compound is reported to contain mineral salts extensively used by a certain European medical school, together with a herb which grows extensively in many parts of New Zealand.

Canadian Insect Pests

The Dominion entomologist, Arthur Gibson, estimates that in the aggregate insects cost Canada in excess of $100,000,000 annually. This is the loss to field crops, and to it must be added the loss to forests and shade trees, stored products, etc. While these latter losses are difficult to estimate they easily average more than $50,000,000 a year.—Canadian Natural Research Bureau.

"Spring with that nameless pathos in the air Which dwells with all things fair, Spring with her golden suns and silver rain Is with us once again."

THIS AND THAT IN COOKERY

Apples are so commonly found in all markets, so wholesome as a fruit and so popular as a food, we find new ways of serving them most welcome.

Pierrot Apples—Pare and core six large cooking apples, cut into eighths. Make a sirup with one cupful of water and cook gently until they are nearly done. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter and finish cooking. Now add one cupful of rich cream, stir to mix and pour into a glass dish, grate nutmeg over the top and serve just warm.

Fried Apple Pudding—Line a buttered pudding dish with strips of sponge cake (cut one-half inch thick) which have been dipped into milk and sautéed lightly in melted butter. Cut cored, pared apples into rings and cook them in the butter. Place half of the apple rings in the lined dish and spread over them one-half cupful of strawberry preserve or jam with plenty of the sirup. Repeat and top with more cake. Bake one-half hour, turn out, sprinkle with sugar and serve with cream.

Apples With Cheese—Cut circles of white bread one-fourth inch thick, dip into melted butter then roll in grated cheese. Place half on a buttered baking dish. Cover with rings of cored apple. Bake in a hot oven and serve sizzling hot.

Chicken Custard—Chop cooked chicken, stir in a thick white sauce, add one beaten egg, and cook stirring constantly; pour into custard cups, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and brown delicately.

Prepare some biscuit sandwiches by rolling out the biscuit dough thinner than usual, spread one with chopped, seasoned ham and cover with another. Bake until well browned. Cheese or any other filling may be used. Grated maple sugar, peanut butter are some other fillings which are worth trying.

Windmills—Roll out a rich pastry cut into four-inch squares, slit each an inch deep in the corner of each square. Brush with egg yolk and milk beaten together, and press the corners toward the center. Place half of a peach cooked in a rich sirup on each and bake until the pastry is well browned. Serve with cream as dessert.

Various Good Things. Honey, because of the water it contains, should when using sugar, reduce the liquid one-fourth, in recipes for honey.

Being slightly acid, honey dishes should have a very little bit of soda used with any quantity over a cupful. Honey in the comb, if kept dry and in a fairly warm place, will not spoil. Extracted honey will crystallize when allowed to stand for some time, but it will quickly melt if the can is set in hot water.

Honey Sauce—Take one tablespoonful each of flour and butter, one cupful of currant jelly, one cupful of boiling water, two ounces of honey, and two ounces of lemon juice. Cook until thick before adding the honey and lemon.

Apple Meringue—Grate one apple, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar and one egg white and beat until light. Serve as cake filling or sauce for various puddings.

Soup From Roast Beef Bones—Remove all the fat and cover with one quart of water, add salt and a lump of sugar, one teaspoonful of beef extract. Simmer three hours with a sliced carrot, add one cupful of chopped cabbage and simmer for one-half hour longer. Serve hot.

Oxtail Soup—Take one oxtail, jointed, three pints of water, one tablespoonful of mushroom catsup, a teaspoonful of sugar. Simmer several hours, then add one slice of carrot and one onion. Simmer another half hour. Serve with the meat in it.

Combination Salad—Take two tart apples cut into slices, one-half cupful of English walnuts, one orange cut into bits. Dress with french dressing and heap on water cress.

Greens in Ramekins—Take fresh cooked greens, season well with buttered crumbs, pack into buttered ramekins, cover with a slice of hard-cooked egg, add a bit of seasoning and butter and set in the oven to become well heated. Serve hot. Any greens—dandelion, spinach or chard—may be used for this dish.

May nettle, burdock, milkweed, marsh marigold are all most delectable greens, if eaten early in the spring. Ragweed, mustard, cow cabbage all have a different flavor and should be used freely when tender and young.

Water cress as soon as the snow is off is ready to serve. It is delightful as a garnish to lamb chops; served with a bit of french dressing it is an especially well liked and piquant salad.

TRIUMPH OF LACE CONTINUES; FLAT CREPE HOLDS POPULARITY

AT EVERY turn of fashion's lane one encounters lace this season. Lace is lavished on lingerie; lace is conspicuous in the field of millinery design, and as to frocks, wraps and ensembles of lace, they make their presence known at every fashionable gathering.

Original and picturesque treatments are scoring new triumphs for the gown all of lace. One of the most unique gestures in the realm of the elite is the wearing of long lace mitts to match the frock. Paris fashions record many instances of this whimsical combination.

An outstanding feature in the styling of the formal lace gown, is the the wrap the unsleeved lace gown tunes to evening formality.

For Afternoon Wear. In the neat "ladylike" frocks of monotone dark crepe which fashion has placed on the style program for spring, the well-dressed woman is discovering the costume—ideal for afternoon wear.

The interesting thing about these good-looking frocks is that they embody all the startling innovations, which declare a new styling this season, without sacrificing that fine conservatism and refinement which marks the dress of "a lady."

High waistlines defined by narrow belts, princess lines fitted through incapelet back. The gown in the picture, which is made of handsome black bemberg lace, owes much of its charm to the fluttering capelet which falls with exceeding grace between the shoulders at the back. There is a series of flounces at the back of the skirt, which accents ultra style.

Quite a new theme is that of lace covered with a transparent medium, such as thinnest chiffon, tulle, and, for very youthful gowns, organdie. Per example, a recent frock for a debutante's coming out party was made of lace veiled with organdie which was almost as transparent as glass. It is a new fancy, this of covering lace with the sheerest of materials, and one which also offers many beguiling possibilities.

When it comes to colorful lace for genious tucking or shirring, new skirt lengths, intricate seamwork, diversified bolero effects, novelty plaiting, especially box plaiting, which is so very smart this season, sleeves of every type, these various details are only part of the infinite list of intricacies which play their part in the styling of the monotone crepe frock.

For these modish afternoon crepes the supremacy of black is strongly contested by handsome dark colors, such as alluring rich reds, the new bright navy, also a whole list of browns and greens.

The effective afternoon dress in the picture is made of sealing-wax red flat crepe. The three most popular ways of achieving flaring lines for the skirt are godets, plaits and circular cuts. The first mentioned is the

the evening frock, flesh and pink tints are scoring a tremendous success. Exquisite hues of springlike freshness are also recorded by formal lace modes. A favorite color is jonquil yellow and there are many "springy" green tints. The gown of red or coral lace is one that is proving a general favorite.

The fact that most of the newer models have jackets of self lace adds to their wearableness. Thus the ensemble of lace is made to do double duty. Topped with its sleeved coat or bolero, a lace costume serves charmingly for dressy afternoon wear. Minus method employed in this instance, the designer inserting long-pointed godets at regular intervals. The belted waistline also the bow of self-fabric which ties at the neck contribute an air of chic to this frock.

Young girls are brightening their black and other dark-toned crepe frocks with fascinating touches of lace or of color. Cunning collar-and-cuff sets formed of hemstitched petals formed of pink, blue, yellow or white pique, are among the fantasies which subtract "age" from the all-black dress.

Easy Pickings for the Burglar

By NELLIE R. GATES

THE Livingston-Smiths' living room was their pride and joy, being the only perfect example of modernism in the Radnor Park apartments. It had been done by a decorator and the space composition was such that if one moved a single thing one inch to right or left the whose scheme was ruined.

The Livingston-Smiths were spending this evening at the country club and the apartment was in darkness. Suddenly a scraping noise bit into the silence and a long ray of light swept the room as a typical "movie" burglar swung in through the window. The flashlight picked out each article of furniture, the raspberry and jade-green velvet davenport and chairs, the strange ornaments of glass and metal perched here and there on the weird shaped cabinets and tables and finally on a chaotic block print in every color of the rainbow hanging over the mantle.

"Hully gee!" gasped the burglar. "What kind of a joint have I gotten into?" But before he had time to find out, a key rattled and the door burst open. He had hardly time to lower himself behind the davenport in the corner before a flood of brilliant light burst from the geometrically shaped side lights.

"Hurry, hurry, Tom, please," and Charlotte Livingston-Smith threw off her hat and reaching up over the mantle tore down the block print that the burglar had just been looking at. "It certainly is fortunate for us that Bridget phoned that message. Aunt Jane would never forgive us if she got here and found we had never hung up her wedding present. Get it, quick."

Tom went into the next room, returning at once with an oil painting in a deep gold frame. "Here's the old dame, big as life and twice as natural."

"You would joke! Aunt Jane will be here any minute. Get a hammer." "Hammer? Hammer, did you say? Since when did this establishment boast a hammer?"

"Well, run down to Wilmots' and get one. And for goodness sake don't stand talking golf with Ed Wil-mot! I am about frantic now." "Gosh, girl! They'll think we are crazy, this time of night."

"Oh, never mind what they think. Just hurry."

As the door slammed behind Tom, Charlotte found herself looking straight into a short black gun in the hands of the man behind the davenport. "It's all right, lady, don't get excited. I am just going," hastening towards the window.

Charlotte sank into one of the crushed raspberry chairs. "Who are you? What do you want?"

"I am the prince of Wales. Just dropped in for a cup o' tea, but as you are engaged I'll come some other time," and he swung up onto the sill, putting the automatic into his coat pocket. Charlotte's fear vanished with the gun.

"Wait a second, prince. I hate to see you going without some loot. That's what you call it?"

"Loot's right, lady, but honest to God, I ain't seen a thing here I'd bother to carry down the 'scape."

Charlotte picked up the wedding picture and thrust it into his arms. "Just a souvenir of your visit, prince. We don't often entertain royalty."

As the astonished man disappeared over the sill, the phone rang sharply. Charlotte tipped over a table and a chair before she took the receiver from the hook. "Yes, Ella," she answered. "It's my aunt. I am expecting her; send her right up."

When Aunt Jane came into the room her young niece threw herself into her arms. "Oh, Aunt Jane, I am so glad you've come. We've just been robbed. And the mean old burglar took the picture you gave us for a wedding present." Just here Tommy burst into the room, hammer in one hand and a length of wire in the other. "A burglar, Tommy," Charlotte explained before he could get his mouth open. "And he took Aunt Jane's picture."

Tom rose to the situation magnificently. Charlotte was proud of him. "Not that lovely thing over the mantle!" looking at the faded spot on the wall where the print had hung.

"I am not surprised," said Aunt Jane, taking off her bonnet. "He probably knew all about it."

"All about it?" This from Charlotte.

"Crooks always keep tabs on such things. You'd better notify the police, although I can't see a New York policeman getting excited over a genuine Milbrant."

"A genuine Milbrant?" "A genuine Milbrant!" Tom echoed her words.

"Gracious goodness, did you think it was a copy? It was the most valuable thing I owned. Came to me from your Uncle Tom's family in England."

She patted first Charlotte's shoulder, then Tom's. "Now, don't worry; the authorities will be able to trace it, I know."

Charlotte sat down abruptly on her cherished davenport. "Tom," she said, "will—will you please take Aunt Jane's bags to her room; I feel weak—weak from shock."

HAS THE LAXATIVE IN YOUR HOME A DOCTOR'S APPROVAL?

Some things people do to help the bowels whenever any bad breath, feverishness, biliousness, or a lack of appetite warn of constipation, really weaken these organs. Only a doctor knows what will cleanse the system without harm. That is why the laxative in your home should have the approval of a family doctor.

The wonderful product, known to millions as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a family doctor's prescription for sluggish bowels. It never varies from the original prescription which Dr. Caldwell wrote thousands of times in many years of practice, and proved safe and reliable for men, women and children. It is made from herbs and other pure ingredients, so it is pleasant-tasting, and can form no habit. You can buy this popular laxative from all drugstores,

TINLEY PARK

The regular monthly meeting of the village board was held on Monday evening. About the only discussion of importance was a suggestion to the board by Mr. Elmore about assessments on water which is to be put in the south east part of the village.

The matter was also brought up that many complaints were being received pertaining to the new method adopted by the Telephone Company on calls between Chicago and Tinley Park in which the party calling is advised that the operator will call back upon procuring party wanted on the other end of line. This inconvenience the party calling and especially so, when calling from a public phone booth. It is understood that the board will take up the matter with the parties concerned relative to remedying this in some way.

The village clerk also advised those present that all petitions for candidates for trustee and village clerk must be in by March 11th, a new ruling of the legislature having changed the filing dates to 35 days prior to election.

TRIANGLE CLUB NOTES

The Triangle Basketball teams had a game with Matteson the 7th of March at Matteson. On March 13th the teams play Palos Park at the Lutheran Gymn at Blue Island. This is a return game.

The Modran Players of Chicago, whose play was sponsored by the Triangle Club some time ago at Tinley Park produced and enacted a new drama at Mokena on March 3rd. Three of the Triangle members were present. Our next meeting night will be March 9.

HER CROSS LITTLE BOY WOULDN'T EAT OR SLEEP

"My little son had poor appetite, couldn't sleep and was cross. I gave him Vinol and it ended these troubles like magic."—Mrs. L. DuCrest. Vinol supplies the body important mineral elements of iron, calcium with cod liver peptone. This is just what thin, nervous children or adults need, and the QUICK results are surprising. The very FIRST bottle brings sound sleep and a BIG appetite. Vinol tastes delicious!
